A DEMONSTRATION IN OILS

by

CLAIRE HARRISON

Some of Claire's work could be described as surrealist. It is detailed, imaginative and delicate and her demonstration promises to be really interesting and absorbing.

Claire is a contemporary artist inspired by the interconnectedness of humanity and nature, and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts (FRSA). Her studio is based in the Weald countryside of Sussex where she studies nature and then paints ethereal, dreamlike colourful artworks that create a tranquil, peaceful presence.

She is passionate about the environment and often combines humanity with natural forms showing that we are an equal part of nature to flowers, trees or insect, each of us just as vulnerable to climate change as any other species.

Claire creates each artwork with great patience, love and detail, slowly building up each layer of oil paint to create depth of colour that appears to glow from the wood that she paints on. Each painting takes many months or even years to create because of her painstaking process.

Please visit Claire's website where there is a range of her unique and exquisite work to enjoy.
